Fire Fighting Physician To Visit Norfolk

Dr. H. M. Archer, Long Identified With New York Department to Address Town Company

Norfolk, Sept. 9.—(Special.)—Dr. Harry M. Archer, of New York, honorary medical officer of the New York Fire Department, ardent follower of New York fires and amateur authority on fire fighting, will be a guest of the Norfolk Volunteer Fire Department September 19 when he will visit Norfolk on invitation of Dr. F. S. Dennis of New York and Norfolk.

Dr. Archer for more than 30 years has been identified with fire fighting in New York, as a volunteer worker at many fires and as the rescuer of many persons overcome in burning buildings. He has been decorated several times for heroic work in saving both firemen and civilians trapped by flames or injured in the fall of burning buildings. A fire department ambulance is under his special charge and for more than 30 years he has attended nearly every important fire in New York.

Detail to Meet Auto.

Dr. Archer will come to Norfolk by automobile and the Fire Department is planning to send a detail of firemen to meet him on the road. In the afternoon the department will conduct a drill for his benefit and in the evening he will talk to members of the department on first aid to the injured at fires and his experience in the New York department. Dr. Archer is with the New York office of the Aetna Life Insurance Company.

Dr. Dennis was influential in organizing the Norfolk Volunteer Fire Department some years ago and has been intensely interested in its welfare. The department now has two motor trucks, one equipped to serve as a hook and ladder, and has 70 active men on its roll.

Covers 10-Mile Radius.

Both trucks are kept at a central firehouse and the department responds to calls within a 10-mile radius. Four years ago a telephone alarm was instituted that, according to Chief J. H. Griffin has proved efficient. An alarm is telephoned to the operator at the Norfolk telephone office and the operator presses a button that sounds the fire siren. Firemen learn from the operator the location of the fire.

The department has an annual appropriation of $600 from the town and gets the rest of its support from private subscription.

Dr. Archer while in Norfolk will be the house guest of Dr. Dennis.
